Clinical Trials Essentials

Everything we do in medicine and healthcare has to be discovered and tested before it is put to use in to regular practice.

In this online course, you will learn how clinical trials are undertaken, how volunteer participants are protected, and how regulations are adhered to.

Who is this course for?

This course is targeted at health practitioners (including medical doctors, nurses, therapists, pharmacists and other allied health professionals), biomedical and public health researchers, ethics committee members, clinical trial coordinators and those working in the health/pharma industry who are interested in developing their skills and knowledge of clinical trials.

It is a Basic Level course that aims to provide the foundational knowledge upon which one can build and develop their competence as a clinical research professional.
